

KRIEG ASSIGNED TO CONSUL POST

Newark Young Man Begins
Diplomatic Career.

This time the story about William L. Krieg, son of L. M. Krieg, 197 Hudson avenue, pupil in his final year at Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Boston, is definite climax to a winter replete with academic accomplishments.

We've followed William L. through honors at Newark high school, honors at Dartmouth university, honors at the Fletcher school where he's working on his doctor's degree, and honors at the state department examining grounds.

Now he is one of 12 appointees named last week by the state department in its exclusive list of vice consul assignments. Krieg will go to Stuttgart, Germany.

His father said this morning that the about-to-be vice consul will arrive here for a brief visit about the last of April. He expects to sail sometime in May to spend six to eight months at the new German post.

From there, he will return to Washington for about five months more training with the state department. After that will doubtless come reappointment to another post.

This time the story about William L. Krieg, son of L. M. Krieg, 197 Hudson avenue, pupil in his final year at Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Boston, is definite climax to a winter replete with academic accomplishments.