Dear Mother: -

I just remembered that Wednesday's your birthday. Of course I'd like to send candy or flowers, but ol' man Depression says "No," so I'll just say, "Many happy returns" instead, and hope that next year things will be different. Now remember, more than anything else I want you to take care of yourself, and Daddy and Janie too. That's much more important than whether I stay in college or not, and don't forget it.

Today there was an announcement in the Dartmouth that the time limit for college bills had been extended to March 17 and that the College will hold checks for collection. I hope this will give you enough time. About Daddy's life insurance, I understand the College will not give scholarships to any unless his father has borrowed on his insurance, so if you want me to get one perhaps that is the best way. However, don't count on it, for I suppose the income from college investments is so low they may ~~be~~^{not} be giving any more. I talked to Paradis about a job in the library (he has one) and he told me who to see, but doubts if there will be anything available even by next fall. The jobs are handed out by the priority of applications, so I will get mine in this week. This is not the case with scholarships, which are awarded all at one time.

 God bless you all. Much love,
 William
